1./15./29.7.7–9pm Collective Autonomy Reading Group

"We cannot be satisfied with the recognition and acknowledgement generated by the very system that denies a) that anything was ever broken and b) that we deserve to be the broken part; so we refuse to ask for recognition and instead we want to take apart, dismantle, tear down the structure that, right now, limits our ability to find each other, to see beyond it and to access the places that we know lie outside its walls."

Jack Halberstam - The Wild Beyond: With and for the Undercommons

Collective Autonomy Reading Group follows Halberstam's persuasion that accessing places outside rigid institutional frameworks contains a potential for the development of other ways of organizing, learning, studying, and practicing with and for each other. As the public discourse in Germany becomes increasingly repressive, and subsequent silencing and marginalization is further perpetuated within German cultural institutions, self-organization takes on additional urgency and significance. If institutional structures withhold space for expressions of solidarity with people in Palestine or to critique the government's policies, then self-organization becomes necessary to build structures with and for each other that sustain spaces for dialogues, solidarity and unlearning.

Drawing from Moten & Harney's concept of Collective Autonomy (2013) we want to engage with possibilities of self-governance and selfdetermination within collective cultural practices. With our reading group, we propose a series of theories and texts to investigate the parameters, possibilities, ambivalences and limitations of grassroots organizing, collective study and solidarity-based practices. In reading together we want to embrace an informal learning structure, in which every participant is invited to introduce texts, facilitate conversations and impact the course of our shared research. The group is open to everyone with experience(s) or interest in these topics and intends to facilitate a space for different forms of knowing, learning and engaging to co-exist.

18.07.2025, 15:00/3pm Length: 56:31 min

Scenes from the Alien Party is a series of audioplays by Xenoverse. The cycle is based on the trope of the 'party scene' common in sci-fi novels from the US-American New Wave. A party denotes a festive social event, or a political group with a certain ideological program, that in revolutionary times could function as a governing body. A party is more generally a collective of people, as in a hunting party. "To part" as in "to separate" is common in the various meanings of the word. It marks a groups distinction from the larger social world to care for each other, lift each other out of repression (both political and libidinal), and may create a space of identification that can function as a vehicle of utopic transformation. Parties are both spaces of intensity in the present, and have a strong historical and future driven perspective. They hold a polyvalent temporality hosted in the collective.

The third episode reads from Dune (1965, Frank Herbert). The scene depicts a dinner by the new administrators of spice mining on Arakis, House Atreides. The duke and his family give insight into their paranoia and the possible networks of betrayal at table. The scene is read by of Alexander Hong, John MacLean, Maria Tammik, Elbe Trakal, David Iselin Rickets, Andres Villareal, Steph Holl-Trieu, Nick Koppenhagen, and Timothy Neate, Sound edit and effects by Zach Hart and Elbe Trakal.

The series was produced at Cashmere Radio in collaboration with CITTIPUNKT.

Xenoverse – is a Berlin-based science fiction and theory study group. Since 2019 we read, read to each other, listen, discuss and collaborate. Themes we slingshot are radical alterity, alienation, utopia and its discontents, queer temporality, dream work, people's punk and the alien party.

The second episode reads from Adulthood Rites (1988, Octavia Butler), the second installment in Butler's Xenogenesis Series. This scene depicts a going away party for the maturing mixed-race teenager Akin, who needs to leave Earth and live on a ship entity to go through metamorphosis. The story is read in the voices of Zach Hart, Maria Tammik, Elbe Trakal, David Iselin Rickets, Andres Villareal, and Anna Winder. Sound edit and effects by Zach Hart and Elbe Trakal.

The series was produced at Cashmere Radio in collaboration with CITTIPUNKT.

Loophole Cinema Club

Loophole Cinema Club is an informal, collectively run cinema club, free of charge and open for everyone who is interested. The aim is to create a physical space for socialization around film sharing, in opposition to the solitary, and commodified consumption of film and cinema, reinforced over the last years by the implementation of streaming platforms. Rarely seen, noncommercial, underrated, independent and experimental films would be prioritized.

If you are generally interested or would like to join. There is a telegram group with more infos to be shared for each meeting.
